NEW ROAD PLANNED.

Connecting Link Between State College and Tyrone, to be built.

The Tyrone Herald expresses itself in this way relative to the improvement of railroad facilities in Centre county:

The inspection of the route of the proposed railroad that when built will connect the Lewisburg and Tyrone branch leading out from Tyrone with the Lewisburg and Tyrone railroad proper, some six or seven miles farther north, by a party of Pennsylvania railroad officials Tuesday, has given rise to the belief in railroad circles that this connecting link between the two lines is to be constructed this summer. The inspection party was headed by General Superintendent George W. Creighton, of Altoona.

The branch leading out from Tyrone leads to Scotia, a small town in Centre county. The Lewisburg and Tyrone road extends from Lewisburg on the east to Bellefonte on the west. Some distance east of Bellefonte the upper road comes within six or seven miles of the branch running out from Tyrone. The nearest points are Fairbrook on the Tyrone branch, and Lemont, a small town on the Lewisburg and Tyrone road.

The proposed connecting link would pass directly through State College and would give that town much better railroad facilities. At present State College is reached by a branch leading out from Bellefonte and the railroad facilities of the town are not of the best.

As Pennsylvania State College is located there, the town, the people of that vicinity claim, is deserving of better railroad facilities. However, it remained for the selection of a site in that vicinity for the new state penitentiary to bring the matter of providing another railroad line forcibly to the attention of the railroad people, and it is claimed that it is because the new penitentiary is to be located in that vicinity, that better transportation facilities will be provided. A large amount of material must be hauled from different parts of the state to the new penitentiary site, and as the work on the institution starts this summer, it will be necessary to rush the proposed railroad to completion and the people of that vicinity look for work to start on the road early this season.

The proposed line would give the people of Blair county better access to State College as well as to Lewisburg and many other towns in Centre and Union counties. Now to reach State College Tyrone people must go to Bellefonte over the Bald Eagle and then travel twenty miles over a jerkwater road to the College. To reach Lewisburg and other intermediate points, it is necessary to go by way of Bellefonte which is a roundabout way.

When the branch from Tyrone to Scotia was constructed some thirty years ago, the survey was made to connect the line with the Lewisburg road farther north, but for some reason the link was never built. The proposed road extends through a comparatively level country and the construction cost will not be great.

It is claimed that it was the general understanding that should the new penitentiary be located near State College the new road would be built as in no other way could easy access to the town from points east and west be gained.

Faltering the Road Department.

If the bill passed by the house providing that all money appropriated to the state highway department for the improvement of roads be expended in each county in proportion to the total mileage of unimproved state highways in the county, is passed by the senate and becomes a law, the opposition to the fifty million dollar bond issue will begin to disappear. The country districts had no assurance that this fund would do road building that would be of service to them. If the road department is haltered by the measure referred to the country districts will get their fair share of the improvements. Under these conditions the Reporter is in favor of the bond issue.

Dailies and Weeklies to Organize.

Pennsylvania daily newspaper publishers will meet at the board of trade and weekly publishers will meet at the Commonwealth Hotel in Harrisburg, April 16. The idea is to form two distinct organizations, one for dailies and one for weeklies and newspapers of less frequency of issue, but both combined and affiliated with one parent organization.

Deaths of Centre Countians.

Daniel Hardy, at Beaver Falls. He formerly lived in the northwestern portion of this county.

Miss Margaret Gillette, of Snow Shoe, in the Altoona Hospital. Her parents live at Snow Shoe where interment was made.

PALMER FOR GOVERNOR.

Newspapers Throughout the State Indorse the Congressman as a Fitting Leader and Candidate.

The Reading "Telegram" nominates Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer for governor, and makes the prediction that "there are enough intelligent voters of all parties, tired and disgusted with present conditions, to land him in the office by a very handsome majority."

This move is seconded by the Pittsburgh Post in this language:

"We agree with our contemporary that the election of Mr. Palmer to the gubernatorial office would be a notable victory, not only for the Democrats, but for the State as a whole. If the party should nominate him it would be taking advantage of an opportunity to gain prestige. I would be an invitation to all honest citizens, and we believe it would be accepted by them. The Democratic party in Pennsylvania is growing, and we do not overlook the important part performed by Mr. Palmer in rescuing it from wreck and building it up on a solid foundation.

By his work in Congress Mr. Palmer has attained National prominence. In politics he stands high and has a record that is unassailable. He was the leader of the Pennsylvania delegation at Baltimore that made the nomination of President Wilson possible. In every line of action he has proved his capability, and by force of character has achieved distinction. The people are tiring of the old methods and are showing a disposition to recognize men like A. Mitchell Palmer.

The Post wants the Democrats of Pennsylvania to elect the next governor, and is confident of their ability to be successful if they continue to solidify their forces so as to be ready when the time comes."

The Centre Reporter can consistently indorse the sentiment of the Reading Telegram and the Pittsburg Post. To show the editor's opinion of Mr. Palmer it reprints here an editorial that appeared in the Centre Reporter on May 19th, 1910, when the congressman was a candidate for renomination, and the foolish idea of rotation was agitated by some. The editorial follows:

"The 26th Congressional District composed of the counties of Monroe, Pike, Northampton, and Carbon has been from time to time most ably represented in Congress by men of superior qualifications—men who, though their terms were cut short by the adherance to the old unwise and foolish policy of county rotation in office—have nevertheless won recognition in the halls of Congress in one short term. Such men as Hon. Judge John B. Storm, a Dickinson College graduate, a brilliant lawyer, and scholarly man; Hon. Howard Mulcher, of Easton, and others, have represented that district with credit.

Today Hon. A. Mitchell Palmer, of Stroudsburg, Monroe county, a graduate of Swarthmore College and a law student of the late Judge Storm, and law partner, has for one term most ably and satisfactorily represented the district. He is a man of exceptional ability, high ideals, sterling qualities and integrity. Already he has won recognition as a leader in Congress. It is not often a newly elected member has commanded the respect of Democrats and Republicans in the House to the extent Mr. Palmer has. The opposing side has complimented him upon his speeches and pays close attention to his utterances, for Congressman Palmer always says something when he speaks. He will make a great record in Congress if the short-sighted policy of his district does not turn down an honest and brilliant man because of the absurd idea of giving some other county its turn. The 26th District has just reason to be proud of Mr. Palmer, and he should be returned. It is the wish of the thoughtful that the state had many more representatives in the halls of Congress as brilliant and as faithful to duty, so that the best interests of the common people would be taken care of."

Farm Land Sold.

Agriculture is not engaged in to as great an extent in Centre Hall as it is in most towns of its size, yet a few located here do farming on the side on a larger or smaller scale. With the view of extending their farming operations, Messrs. J. W. Mitterling and John C. Rossman purchased all of the land comprising the Arney homestead lying south of the Brush Valley road, owned by Benjamin H. Arney. There were twenty-six acres in the tract, Mr. Mitterling taking sixteen acres, and Mr. Rossman the remainder. The price paid was $100 per acre. Mr. Arney retained all of the land north of the road and the splendid buildings on it.

The Old District School.

"The Old District School," a farce in two acts, will be rendered by the members of the Y. P. B. in Grange Arcadia on Saturday evening. The young people should be given encouragement in their efforts to entertain. There will be plenty of music and fun. Admission ten and twenty cents; reserved seats, 25 cents.

One of Centre Hall's greatest needs: A play ground.

FUNDS FOR STATE.

Legislature May be More Liberal in Its Support of Pennsylvania's Greatest Educational Institution.

A new era in agriculture in Pennsylvania seems to be dawning. Although the Legislature has been for many years generous in making appropriations for the support of the public schools, it has been quite the reverse with relation to education in agriculture, on which human life absolutely depends and which is the basis of all prosperity.

At the last preceding biennial session of the General Assembly, $15,000,000 was given to the public schools besides $115,000 to the Department of Public Instruction for salaries and expenses making a total appropriation for two years of $15,115,600. At the same session the total appropriation for the School of Agriculture and Experiment Station at State College, for general maintenance, the construction of buildings, repairs and the purchase of equipment, was $230,000, or $115,000 a year—this is less than one-fourth the amount appropriated for the same purposes in Ohio and less than one-fifth that given in the State of New York.

But a better spirit appears now to prevail. In his message to the Legislature, Governor Tener, after a personal visit to the institution strongly recommended generous treatment of State College, especially emphasizing more adequate appropriations for the School of Agriculture.

Bills along the lines of the Governor's recommendation were introduced in the Legislature which it is earnestly hoped will be passed, and on Monday of this week another, designed to meet a long-felt need in agricultural education, was introduced by Representative Jones, of Blair county.

It provides for an appropriation of $100,000 to continue and improve the Extension work of the School of Agriculture—carrying instruction to the farmer which he cannot go to college to get—which has been made possible heretofore by the professional pride and enthusiasm of the under-paid faculty of the school, the enterprise of the great railroad companies, local associations and private individuals.

If Pennsylvania is to hold its own in the race with the other great agricultural States in the East, the Legislature must begin now to treat the farming interests much more liberally in matters of agricultural scientific education than it has in the past, and must keep it up. Governor Tener appears to realize this. We hope the Legislature does also.

Want P. O. Name Changed.

The continued annoyance in shipping occasioned by having different names for the postoffice and shipping address has induced many of the citizens of Spring Mills to petition the Post Office Department to change the postoffice name from "Spring Mills" to "Rising Springs," the latter being the name of the shipping point. On one of the Pennsy lines in Montgomery county there is a "Spring Mills" railroad station, and this obliged the railroad company to change Spring Mills to Rising Springs. Many packages find their way to Spring Mills (Montgomery county) that should be sent to our neighboring village, and while the railroad company corrects these errors, there are frequent delays in doing so.

Of course, there is something about a town name that the average citizens dislikes to part with, but in many cases the advantages gained by a change overbalance these sentimental objections. Some years ago an effort was made to straighten out the Spring Mills—Rising Springs tangle, but there was much opposition. This has largely passed away, and between the government, the railroad and the people in that community the question will no doubt be settled to the advantage of all, and loss to none.

Movings.

Bruce E. Runkle, who since his marriage has lived with his parents east of Old Fort, is now located in the Snyder property in the Keller district; William B. Bressler from the Luse farm east of Old Fort to the farm near Spring Mills vacated by J. M. Heckman, and Bressler is followed by Wm. M. Houser, who came down from Nittany Mountain; N. B. Shaffer is followed by Charles T. Crust, which farm lying east of Old Fort, was purchased by his mother, Mrs. W. E. Crust. Nelson Marshall from the Gregg farm to suceed A. P. Leister, who retired from farm life, and George B. Slack began farm life on the place Marshall vacated. Aaron Lutz from the Benner farm to the Mrs. Hannah Smith property west of town.

The Pink Label appears this week, which indicates that all who paid subscription between March 1st and April 8th have had the credit placed on their labels.

RAZING LANDMARK.

Blacksmith Shop, School House, Tin Shop, Postoffice Occupied Same in Early History.

Charles D. Bartholomew began razing the buildings next to his residence, and will use a part of the old material in building up a new structure to be used for offices, etc.

The shops being torn away were erected many years ago by Samuel Harpster, and in them was carried on in the early history of Centre Hall, general blacksmithing and wagon building. After the death of Mr. Harpster, in the beginning of the seventies, the blacksmithing was closed out, and since the structures have been used for various purposes. Before the present school house was built, a primary grade of the township schools was quartered for several terms in the rear portion and later the postoffice was located there when the late J. A. Reesman was postmaster, as was also the tin shop conducted by him. When B. D. Brisbin was appointed postmaster the second time the postoffice was again located in that building, but in the front instead of the rear portion, and there it remained until Postmaster Boal removed it to its present quarters.

In 1856, or shortly thereafter, the Harpster brothers—Jacob, George and Samuel, all blacksmiths and wagon builders by trade—were casting about for suitable locations to build smithshops and establish business places. They went to the Old Fort and made overtures to the late George Odenkirk to secure lots opposite the Old Fort hotel with the above view in mind. Mr. Odenkirk refused to entertain their proposition, and then the lot now occupied by the buildings being razed, the two dwelling houses next to it and the present quarters of the Reporter, were purchased by two of the brothers—Jacob and Samuel. The first Methodist church, a log structure east of Centre Hall located on the site now known as Pennington's cemetery, was purchased, and this material used in the construction of the buildings named.

When the Harpster brothers went to the Old Fort to purchase business sites, the postoffice was located there and George Odenkirk was the post master. That was in the days of the stage lines, when four-in-hands carried the mail over the mountains to Lewistown. It was not long after these shops were erected here that a movement was on foot to remove the postoffice from Old Fort to this section. And this was done, William Wolf being made postmaster, and the office was located in his store room now occupied by D. A. Boozer's saddlery. When Mr. Odenkirk discovered what was happening, he first realized that he failed to take advantage of an opportunity. The postoffice name was also changed and Old Fort lost its place in the postoffice list and Centre Hall was added.

At this period in the history of Centre Hall, there were few buildings here. Beside the Harpster shops stood the dwelling house occupied formerly by the writer; the building razed by Dr. Bitner stood opposite the present Reporter site; the Witmer property, the Wolf property, the hotel, the J. D. Murray home now occupied by S. E. Ripka, the Harpster property, the home of the senior George Harpster, now occupied by B. D. Brisbin, the Wilson property, the Felmlee hotel, where the Lutheran church now stands, were the only improvements in these quarters.

This is a bit of history fittingly recited as these old landmarks pass away.

WHY HE DOES IT.

Druggists Murray & Bitner Gives Reasons for Selling at Half-Price.

It isn't often that we have faith enough in the medicines put up by other people to be willing to offer to refund the money if it does not cure, said druggist Murray & Bitner to one of their many customers, but we are glad to sell Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia on that plan.

"The Dr. Howard Co., in order to get a quick introductory sale authorized us to sell the regular fifty cent bottle of their specific for half price, 25 cents and although we have sold a lot of it, and guaranteed every package, not one has been brought back as unsatisfactory."

We are still selling the specific at half price, although we cannot tell how long we shall be able to do so. Any person who is subject to constipation, sick headache, dizziness, liver trouble, indigestion or a general played out condition, ought to take advantage of this opportunity. If the specific does not cure them, they can come right back to our store, and we will cheerfully refund their money.

DEATHS

Howard E. Grove, a well known resident of College township, died at his home at Houserville on Monday afternoon of last week, after a prolonged illness with tuberculosis. He was a son of William and Rosetta Grove and was born near Houserville, and was aged forty-two years, one month and thirteen days. He was a farmer by occupation and his entire life was spent in College township, where he was universally esteemed by all who knew him.

On March 21st, 1893, he was united in marriage to Miss Margaret Houser, a daughter of David and Martha Houser, who survives with seven children, namely: Mae R., Charles D., Clara M., Bessie, Frederick B., Hannah and Paul, all at home. Funeral services were held in the United Brethren church in Houserville by Rev. Johnson, burial being made in the Houserville cemetery.

Miss Mamie Maritz died Wednesday evening of last week at the home of her brother Samuel in Pine Grove Mills. She was in good health up until that morning when she was stricken with paralysis while helping with the breakfast. She never regained consciousness and died the same evening. Deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Maritz and was born at Shingletown sixty-eight years ago. Her early life was spent at that place but for many years she had been a resident of Pine Grove Mills. She was a member of the Lutheran church from girlhood and was a good christian woman. He was born at Baileyville, but most of his life was spent in Clearfield county. At one time he drove the stage between Lewistown and Bellefonte, and no doubt will be recalled by many of the older readers of this paper. His wife, nee Miss Elizabeth Neiderriter, of Clarion county, died eleven years ago, but there survive these sons and daughters: Samuel, of Chicago; Charles and Mrs. F. I. Forst, of Juniata; Miss Ida, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Mary Burns, of Harrisburg, and William and David, of Morrisdale.

Mrs. Amelia Micheals, a native of Centre Hall, this county, died at the Blair county hospital, Friday, aged eighty-one years. She was the widow of J. C. Micheals. Two sons, Harry, of Tyrone, and H. Jesse, of Drifton, survive, together with two brothers, John Quick, of Altoona, and Thomas Quick, of Julian.

[The above is copied from the Philipsburg Journal. Inquiry among the older residents of Centre Hall fails to establish the fact that Mrs. Micheals was ever a resident here.—EDITOR]

Mrs. Enos Hess, a one time resident of State College, died at her home in Grantham, Lancaster county. Funeral services were held at Grantham. The body was taken to the Cross Roads church where additional services were held and interment made at Florin. ## TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

HAPPENINGS OF LOCAL INTEREST FROM ALL PARTS

Keep in mind the "Old District School," in Grange Arcadia, Saturday evening.

The trout season opens next Tuesday, and then the industrious fisherman will be out early with rod and hook.

Milford Luse, Thomas L. Smith, and Dr. A. G. Lieb contracted with the Bell Telephone Company for telephones.

Harry Alters, who for some time conducted a tobacco store in Bellefonte, is now a traveling salesman for a tobacco firm in South Carolina.

Robert M. Way, of Half Moon valley, well known to many of our people, recently had his right arm amputated at the shoulder as a result of blood poisoning.

A. J. Tate, of Pine Grove Mills, has opened an undertaking establishment at State College, and will also repair furniture. He is assisted in his work by George E. Harpster.

John H. Runkle, east of Old Fort, was a pleasant business caller on Thursday morning of last week. Mr. Runkle like all Penns Valley farmers, is busily engaged in farm work.

Allen A. Orr has been indorsed for the appointment for postmaster at Lewistown by Congressman Dershem. Orr is the present Democratic chairman and president of the Lewistown school board.

James Swabb, at Tusseyville, and John Ream, at Farmers Mills, had telephones placed in their homes. Both are connected with rural lines, under the system of the Patrons Rural Telephone Company.

Mrs. Drucilla Hess, of Linden Hall, on Friday of last week, suffered a paralytic stroke. For a time her condition was quite serious, but since she has improved very much, and is now able to sit up in bed.

The mild weather during the past winter has raised great expectations among the peach growers in Snyder county. They are looking forward to the largest crop of the luscious fruit obtained since peach growing in that county has become a business.

The Philipsburg Daily Journal claims to be well seasoned on its twenty-fifth anniversary, and is enjoying prosperity. The paper has been under its present management during the whole of the quarter century of its life. The Reporter wishes its contemporary continued success.

The snow machine was in operation on Sunday and performed just as good as ever. The ground for several hours was covered with the beautiful, but not deep enough to hide the onion tops, wheat plants, grasses and clovers. Monday was also a cold day, although the sun peeped through the broken clouds.

Rev. R. R. Jones, pastor of the Centre Hall Reformed charge, has just issued No. 3 of the "Reformed Church Bulletin." This paper covers the true scope of a parish paper and is devoted exclusively to the local affairs of the various congregations composing the charge served by the editor. The Bulletin is issued whenever occasion demands, and in this way needed information is disseminated just at the right time.

Henry E. Rearick, of Altoona, and John F. Stover, of Berrysburg, two former Centre Hall boys, met for the first time in twenty years at the latter's home one day last week, and talked over the happenings in and about Centre Hall when they were the kiddies at Old Fort. Mr. Rearick is now an Altoona railroad shopman of means, and Mr. Stover is a general merchant and postmaster at Berryburg, and, like his chum, has made good.

Mrs. W. L. Musser, of Altoona, who before marriage was Miss Pearl Weaver, a daughter of the late Prof. John A. Weaver, of Pine Grove Mills; Mrs. Irvin Bloom, of Williamsport, and Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Fisher, of Penn Hall, were invited guests at the Centre Hall hotel on Friday. Mrs. Musser and Mrs. Bloom are nieces of Mrs. J. W. Runkle, and the former is a cousin of Mrs. Fisher. The company spent the day in a most delightful manner.

If B. D. Brisbin, the lumberman, had the control of roads he would not only have them made smooth and hard, but the width in proportion to length would be about two to one. This is simply a guess as to his opinion, and it is based on the fact that when the other evening he was practicing to guide a gasoline-driven machine, the fence alongside the road was too close for his convenience. He expects to be able to run just as straight as occasion demands by the time the new Ford he is quoted as having ordered reaches here.

Died last Sep. 1957 - age: 93+ years

FARMING CAMPAIGN.

Few ideas have taken root more rapidly, when once germinated, than that of the farm improvement committee, with its expert adviser giving demonstrations among the farmers. In the west this plan is being promoted energetically by the council of grain exchanges, made up of 17 grain organization in different centers, says the Springfield Union. According to Secretary Ball of the council's crop improvement committee no less than 102 counties have already employed men to give expert advice on farming, while 120 other counties have nearly completed arrangements for organizing on this line. He added that he was in correspondence with nearly 700 counties, and that his organization was co-operating with the national and state departments of agriculture, the bankers' associations and two great corporations that have offered prizes to promote improvement in raising crops. The seed-testing feature is receiving attention, and the question of marketing crops is treated as no less important than crop production. It is surprising to note the great number and variety of interests that have become actively interested in the campaign for better farming. If the Page-Lever-Smith legislation, now pending in congress, should be enacted as proposed, the federal government would expend $3,000,000 annually in precisely the kind of work proposed to be carried on in Hampden county, and already under way in many other counties.

One of the sayings of an old Persian wise man is: "All unuttered truths become poisonous." Wonder if that is not the matter with us all—we do not say the real things that lie close to the heart. For it is surely the fact, if a man suppresses the truth he will break out somewhere in a lie or deceit. But suppose the truths are all uttered, what would become of politics, religion, society, business! There would certainly be a frightful holocaust. Sometimes one does meet a man or morehaps a woman, who will tell the truth the heart holds, not in vanity or boasting, but in candor and love—what a clear sky breaks all about such a person, how sweet the air is, how green the grass grows! One lives in a new world. One takes on higher aims. But suppose everybody would utter his truth! The theory of humanity is that it would be well. But we would prefer to wait a few centuries for the spirit to get a better headway in human shrdlu shrdlu u it would be well to ponder over the wise Persian's aphorism: "All unuttered truths become poisonous." And its corollary, too: All lies become poisonous, too.

Although the practice of making plaintiff and defendant kneel down before the judge in the course of a lawsuit and the application of corporal punishment to extract confession from the suspected offender have been prohibited by law, still in some rural districts and cities the authorities of the court have not yet completely abandoned these practices, says the Pekin Daily News. President Yuan, wishing the authorities to respect the rights of the people and thereby to show them the real significance of a Republican form of government, has telegraphed instructions to the Tutuhs to investigate the practice of the local courts.

A doctor in Pittsburgh has been talking to schoolgirls about the "bird-cage" disease of high society women, meaning the undermining ill-health proceeding from the undermining of their constitutions by too much indolence, social indulgences, lack of proper exercise and too much rich food. # MRS. PANKHURST GOES TO PRISON

A Riotous Scene in Old Bailey Sessions.

SUFFRAGISTS SHOUT FIGHT.

A Scene Never Before Witnessed In the Historic Old Bailey—Street Crowds Hoot At the Angy Women.

London.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the leader of the militant suffragettes was found guilty and sentenced to three years penal servitude at the Old Bailey Sessions on the charge of inciting persons to commit damage.

The jury added to its verdict of guilty a strong recommendation for mercy, and when the judge pronounced the heavy sentence of three years the crowd of women in the courtroom rose in angry protest.

They broke out in a chorus of "Shame!" and "Outrage!" With Mrs. Pankhurst's defiance to the judge, "I'll Fight! Fight! Fight!" still ringing in their ears, the suffragettes went wild.

Standing on the seats they shrieked and shouted anathemas at the court. For three minutes they held full sway in the courtroom. The police were powerless. The judge's warning that he would commit the entire party of women to prison for contempt fell upon deaf ears. The women mocked the judge and laughed at his threats, and they finally left the court singing the suffragette Battle Song. Such a scene never before was witnessed at the Old Bailey.

Secretary Bryan conferred with President Wilson for nearly an hour at the White House completing the details, and a note is being prepared at the State Department to be addressed to China through the Chinese Minister here. The United States government is anxious to show its friendliness toward China, and while there have been rumors that other nations might anticipate the action of this country and recognize China before the United States does, in official circles here it was believed that the United States would be found first to show its faith in the new republic. No formal announcement is expected from the administration here until the Chinese government is in receipt of the American government's note.

He will leave the east coast of Newfoundland in a Burgess-Wright hydroplane, together with Harry Gingham Brown, in July next in a flight to win the $50,000 prize offered by the London Daily Mail for the first heavier-than-air machine to fly across the Atlantic. According to the plans he has already made, the flight will be made in 36 hours, including one stop in mid-ocean.

Tentative arrangements, he says, have already been made with the Cunard, White Star and Anchor steamship lines, who will instruct the captains of their vessels to keep a sharp lookout for the aeroplane. No wireless apparatus will be carried. Everything will be sacrificed in order that the machine will be as light as possible.

An altitude of 1,200 feet will be maintained throughout, and at that height it will be possible to see anything within a radius of 50 miles.

Fifty Horsepower Engine.

The aeroplane will be a Burgess-Wright, with pontoon floats, and will be constructed in Marblehead, Mass., next month. The engine will be a specially selected 50-horsepower motor, and will be subjected to rigid tests before being fitted to the machine.

It is not the spirit of the English suffragettes that actuates us, but the spirit and principle which actuated our forefathers in dumping tea into Boston harbor—taxation without representation."

Mr. Ellicker was driving the hearse and in an effort to avoid striking the minister's buggy ran his team into a fence. The horse was so badly injured that it had to be killed.

BLOW OUT LEVEE NO LIVES LOST

Dynamite Used at Shawneetown, Ind.

DONE TO SAVE LIVES.

Destruction Of the Levee Necessary To Reduce Pressure and Save Lives Of Persons At Cairo and Other Points.

Evansville, Ind.—The south levee at Shawneetown was blown out with dynamite. The water is within four inches of the north levee. The property loss is placed at $100,000. No lives were lost. The destruction of the levee was necessary to reduce the pressure of the water and save lives at Cairo and other river points.

Cairo, Ill.—The Big Four levee, which protected the "drainage district," and which was abandoned early in the day, went out at 5.45 P. M. about five miles north of this city. Cairo proper is not affected, as the levee separating the city from the "drainage district" is intact.

Abandon Levee.

The executive committee at Cairo considered further preventive measures at the Big Four weak spot useless and abandoned that district to its fate. It was well wrecked last year, so far as dwellings were concerned, and dozens of these since have remained unoccupied.

Several big commercial houses will unquestionably suffer great loss. The Greenfield levee, on the Missouri side, a small affair, was reported here to have gone out. The Cairo situation will not be relieved in any way by this break.

Big Four officials have been notified with other railroads to care for their own equipment along the levee, the breaking of which means the complete tie up of roads in this territory.

Would Flood 14 Counties.

Prospects are favorable to successfully take care of approaching floods at Cairo now coming out of the Ohio River, which will greatly exceed the high waters of 1912, provided levees to the south hold. Citizens and soldiers are working to accomplish this end.

The levee in front of Reelfort Lake slough, below Hickman, Ky., is being reinforced with rock. It was flooded last year and the levee is reported now to be weakening. A break there, it is said, would mean the flooding of about 14 counties. It would give great impetus to the already swift current of the Ohio River and probably would mean great destruction along the lower Mississippi levees.

MEXICO MAKES FORMAL PROTEST

Arms Shipped From the United States to Rebels.

REQUESTS MORE VIGILANCE

Numerous Consignments Of War Material, Including Machine Guns, Sent Across Border Even At Regular Ports Of Entry.

Mexico City.—The Mexican government has made a formal protest to the American government against the shipping of arms and ammunition from the United States to the rebels and has requested that greater vigilance be exercised in guarding the frontier. Mexican officials understand that numerous consignments of war material, including many machine guns, have been sent across the border, in some cases at the regular ports of entry, and are now in the hands of the rebels.

It is pointed out by the same officials that since the rebels control a large part of the frontier this country is dependent absolutely for the time being on the United States to prevent the rebels from obtaining supplies. That the rebels are securing quantities of ammunition appears to be a fact.

No notable improvement in the revolutionary situation is apparent. The greater success in recent days are credited to the rebels, although severe punishment in minor engagements has been inflicted on the adherents of Venustiano Carranza near Monterey. The report that Carranza and his chief lieutenant, Major Carfias, have been captured has not been confirmed.

Residents of the capital are nervous because of continued rumors of friction between President Huerta and Gen. Felix Diaz, and of plots and intrigues, even to the fixing of dates when a new battle may be expected in the streets or the assassination of one or the other of the principals.

The President will discuss administration policies and sketch his official programs, much of the matter discussed necessarily being in confidence and solely for the guidance of the writers.

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Keziah Coffin, supposed widow, is arranged to move from Trumet to Boston, following the death of her brother, for whom she had kept house. Kyan Pepper, widower, offers marriage, and is indignantly refused. Capt. Elkanah Daniels, leader of the Regular church offers Keziah a place as housekeeper for the new minister, and she decides to remain in Trumet. Keziah takes charge of Rev. John Ellery, the new minister, and gives him advice as to his conduct toward members of the parish. Ellery causes a sensation by attending a "Come-outer" meeting. Ellery's presence is bitterly resented by Eben Hammond, leader of the meeting. Grace apologizes for her guardian and Ellery escorts her home in the rain. Capt. Nat Hammond, Eben's son, becomes a hero by bringing the packet into port safely through fog and storm. Ellery finds Keziah writing a letter to some one, inclosing money in response to a demand. She is curiously startled when informed of the arrival of Nat. Nat calls on Keziah, and it develops that they have been lovers since youth. Daniels remonstrates with Ellery for attending "Come-outer" meeting. Ellery is caught by the tide and is rescued by Nat. They become friends. Ellery meets Grace while walking in the fields, and learns that she walks there every Sunday. The clergyman takes dinner Sundays with the Daniels. Annabel, the captain's daughter, exerts herself to make an impression on him. She notices with vexation his desire to get away every Sunday at a certain time. She watches him through a spy glass. Nat again importunes Keziah to marry him. He says he has had a quarrel with his father, who wants him to marry Grace. Ellery asks Grace to marry him. She confesses that she loves him, but says she fears to displease her guardian. Elkanah Daniels tells Eben about the meetings between Ellery and Grace. Eben declares he will make Grace choose between him and the preacher. Grace finds him in a faint, following the excitement of Elkanah's visit.

"Well, doctor?" she asked anxiously.

The stout, gray-haired old physician—he had practiced in Trumet for nearly thirty years—shook his head.

"Not a single chance," he whispered. "He may possibly live till morning, but I doubt if he lasts an hour. It's his heart. I've expected it at any time."

Captain Nat was standing at the door of the bedroom. His face was drawn and he had seemingly grown years older since noon.

"He's come to himself, doc," he whispered. "He don't remember how it happened or anything. And he wants us all. Why! why, Keziah! are you here? You can come in, too. I know dad likes you and I guess—Wait a minute; I'll ask him." He stepped back into the bedroom. "Yes," he nodded, returning, "you come, too. He wants you."

The little room, Captain Eben's own, was more like a skipper's cabin than a chamber on land. In the corner stood the captain's big boots and his oilskins hung about them. His Sunday cane was there also. And on the bureau was a worn, heavy Bible.

Dr. Parker brushed by the others and bent over the bed.

"Well, cap'n," he said cheerily, "how's she headed? How are you feeling now?"

The old face on the pillow smiled feebly.

"She's headed for home, I guess, doc," said Captain Eben. "Bound for home, and the harbor light broad abeam, I cal'late."

"Oh, no! you'll make a good many voyages yet."

"Not in this hulk, I won't, doctor. I hope I'll have a new command pretty soon. I'm trustin' in my owners and I guess they'll do the fair thing by me. Halloo, Gracie, girl! Well, your old uncle's on his beam ends, ain't he?"

Grace glanced fearfully at his face. When he spoke her name she shrank back, as if she feared what he might say. But he only smiled as, with the tears streaming down her face, she bent over and kissed him.

"There! there!" he protested. "You mustn't cry. What are you cryin' about me for? I'm fit and ready for the sea I'm goin' to sail." His eyes wandered from his son to Mrs. Coffin. For an instant he seemed puzzled. Then he said:

"'Evenin,' Keziah. I don't know why you're here, but—"

"I heard that Grace was alone and that you was sick, Eben. So I come right down, to help if I could."

"Thank ye. You're a good-hearted woman, Keziah, even though you ain't seen the true light yet. And you're housekeeper for that hired priest—a—a—" He paused, and a troubled look came over his face.

"What is it, dad?" asked Nat.

"I—I— Where's Gracie? She's here, ain't she?"

"Yes, uncle, I'm here. Here I am," said the girl. His fingers groped for her hand and seized it.

"Yes, yes, you're here," murmured Captain Eben. "I—I—for a minute or so, I—I had an awful dream about you, Gracie. I dreamed— Never mind. Doc, answer me this now, true and honest, man to man: Can you keep me here for just a little spell longer? Can you? Try! Ten minutes, say. Can you?"

"Of course I can. Cap'n Hammond, what are you—"

"Belay, I tell you. Yes, I guess 'twas a dream. It had to be, but 'twas so sort of real that I— How long have I been this way?"

"Oh, a little while! Now just—"

"Hush! Don't pull your hand away, Gracie. Now, give me yours. That's it. Now I put them two hands together. See, doctor? See, Keziah?"

"Don't, uncle, don't!" pleaded Grace. "Don't worry about me. Think of yourself, please."

"S-sh-sh! Don't put me off. Just listen. I want you to marry my boy, after I'm gone. I want you to say you will—say it now, so's I can hear it. Will you, Gracie?"

Grace would have withdrawn her hand, but he would not let her. He clung to it and to that of his son with all his failing strength.

"Will you, Gracie?" he begged. "It's the last thing I'm goin' to ask of you. I've tried to be sort of good to you, in my way, and—"

"Don't, don't!" she sobbed. "Let me think a minute, uncle, dear. Oh, do let me think!"

"Won't you say it for me, Gracie?" pleaded Captain Eben. She hesitated no longer.

"Yes, uncle," she answered through tears, "if Nat wants me he can have me."

Keziah clasped her hands Captain Eben's face lit up with a great joy.

"Thank the Almighty!" he exclaimed. "Lord, I do thank you. Nat, boy, you're consider'ble older than she is and you'll have to plan for her. You be a good husband to her all her days, won't ye? Why, what are you waitin' for? Why don't you answer me?"

Nat groaned aloud.

"A minute dad," he stammered. "Just give me a minute, for Heaven sakes! Keziah—"

"Keziah!" repeated Eben. "Keziah? What are you talkin' to her for? She knows there couldn't be no better match in the world. You do know it, don't ye, Keziah?"

"Yes," said Keziah slowly. "I guess—I guess you're right, Eben."

"Keziah Coffin," cried Nat Hammond, "do you tell me to marry Grace?"

"Yes, Nat, I—I think your father's right."

"Then—then—what difference does— All right, dad. Just as Grace says."

"Thank God!" cried Captain Eben. "Doctor, you and Mrs. Coffin are witnesses to this. There! now my decks are clear and I'd better get ready to land. Gracie, girl, the Good Book's over there on the bureau. Read me a chapter, won't you?"

An hour later Keziah sat alone in the dining room. She had stolen away when the reading began. Dr. Parker, walking very softly, came to her and laid his hand on her shoulder.

"He's gone," he said simply.

CHAPTER XII.

In Which Keziah Breaks the News.

It was nearly five o'clock, gray dawn of what was to be a clear, beautiful summer morning, when Keziah softly lifted the latch and entered the parsonage. All night she had been busy at the Hammond tavern. Busy with the doctor and the undertaker, who had been called from his bed by young Higgins; busy with Grace, soothing her, comforting her as best she could, and petting her as a mother might pet a stricken child. The poor girl was on the verge of prostration, and from hysterical spasms of sobs and weeping passed to stretches of silent, dry-eyed agony which were harder to witness and much more to be feared.

"It is all my fault," she repeated over and over again. "All my fault! I killed him! I killed him, Aunt Keziah! What shall I do? Oh, why couldn't I have died instead? It would have been so much better, better for everybody."

"Keziah Coffin!" Cried Nat Hammond, "Do You Tell Me to Marry Grace?"

Dr. Parker was very anxious.

"She must rest," he told Mrs. Coffin "She must, or her brain will give way. I'm going to give her something to make her sleep and you must get her to take it."

So Keziah tried and, at last, Grace did take the drug. In a little while she was sleeping, uneasily and with moans and sobbings, but sleeping, nevertheless.

"Now it's your turn, Keziah," said the doctor. "You go home now and rest, yourself. We don't need you any more just now. Now you go home. You've had a hard night, like the rest of us."

How hard he had no idea. And Keziah, as she wearily entered the parsonage, realized that the morning would be perhaps the hardest of all. For upon her rested the responsibility of seeing that the minister's secret was kept. And she, and no other, must break the news to him.

The dining room was dark and gloomy. She lighted the lamp. Then she heard a door open and Ellery's voice, as he called down the stairs.

"Who is it?" he demanded. "Mrs. Coffin?"

She was startled. "Yes," she said softly, after a moment. "Yes, Mr. Ellery, it's me."

"It's morning," said the minister. "Are you sick? Has anything happened?"

"Yes," she answered slowly, "somethin' has happened. Are you dressed? Could you come down?"

He replied that he would be down in a moment. When he came he found her standing by the table waiting for him. The look of her face in the lamplight shocked him.

"Why, Mrs. Coffin!" he exclaimed. "What is it? You look as if you had been through some dreadful experience."

Her heart went out to him. She held out both her hands.

"You poor boy," she cried, "I'm trying to tell you one of the hardest things a body can tell. Yes, some one is dead, but that ain't all. Eben Hammond, poor soul, is out of his troubles and gone."

"Eben Hammond! Captain Eben? Dead! Why, why—"

"Yes, Eben's gone. He was took down sudden and died about ten o'clock last night. I was there and—"

"Captain Eben dead! Why, he was as well as—as— She said— Oh, I must go! I must go at once!"

He was on his way to the door, but she held it shut.

"No," she said gravely, "you mustn't go. John—you won't mind me callin' you John. I'm old enough, pretty nigh, to be your mother, and I've come to feel almost as if I was. John, you've got to stay here with me. You can't go to that house. You can't go to her."

"Mrs. Coffin, what are you saying? Do you know— Have you—"

"Yes, I know all about it. I know about the meetin's in the pines and all. Oh, why didn't you trust me and tell me? If you had, all would have been so much better!"

He looked at her in utter amazement. The blood rushed to his face.

"You know that?" he whispered.

"Yes, I know."

"Did she tell—"

"No, nobody told. That is, only a little. I got a hint and I suspicioned somethin' afore. The rest I saw with my own eyes."

He was now white, but his jaw shot forward and his teeth closed.

"If you do know," he said, "you must realize that my place is with her. Now, when she is in trouble—"

"It ain't the congregation, John," she said. "Nor Trumet, nor your ministry. That means more'n you think it does, now; but it ain't that. You mustn't go to her because—well, because she don't want you to."

"Doesn't want me? I know better." He laughed in supreme scorn.

"She doesn't want you, John. She wouldn't see you if you went. She would send you away again, sure, sartin sure. She would. And if you didn't go when she sent you, you wouldn't be the man I hope you are. John, you mustn't see Grace again. She ain't yours. She belongs to some one else.

"John, Grace Van Horne is goin' to marry Cap'n Nat Hammond. There! that's the livin' truth."

She led him over to the rocking-chair and gently forced him into it. He obeyed, although with no apparent realization of what he was doing. Still with her hand on his shoulder she went on speaking. She told him of her visit to the Hammond tavern, saying nothing of Mr. Pepper's call nor of her own experience in the grove. She told of Captain Eben's seizure, of what the doctor said, and of the old Come-Outer's return to consciousness. Then she described the scene in the sick room and how Nat and Grace had plighted troth. He listened, at first stunned and stolid, then with growing impatience.

"So you see," she said. "It's settled; they're engaged, and Dr. Parker will tell everybody of the engagement this very mornin'. It wan't any great surprise to me. Those who have been brought up together; 'twas the natural thing that was almost bound to happen. Eben's heart was set on it for years. And she'll have a good husband, John, that I know. And she'll do her best to make him happy. He's a good man and—"

"But I know—"

"Do you suppose she would come to you if she knew it would be your ruin?"

He hesitated. The last time they met, ages before—no, only the previous afternoon—she had told him it was his happiness and his future only that she thought of. He choked and drew his hand across his eyes.

"Mrs. Coffin," he said, "you tell me it will be her ruin. You tell me so. You say she doesn't want me. I tell you that the only thing that will keep me from her is hearing that from her own lips. When she tells me to leave her I will, and not before."

"She'll tell you, John; she'll tell you. And I know Grace. She's made up her mind and won't change it. But I do ask you this: I ask you not to go now. Wait a little while, do. I left her asleep, worn out by what she's been through and under the effects of the doctor's sleepin' medicine. He said she must rest or he was afraid her brain would give out. For her sake, then, wait a little. Then, if you don't hear from her, maybe I can arrange a meetin' place where you can see her without anyone's knowin' it. I'll try. But do wait a little while, for her sake, won't you?"

At last he was listening and hesitating.

"Won't you?" begged Keziah.

"Yes," he answered slowly. "I'll wait. I'll wait until noon, somehow, if I can. I'll try. But not a minute later. Not one. You don't know what you're talking about, Mrs. Coffin."

"Yes, I do. I know well. And I thank you for her sake."

But he did not have to wait until noon. At six o'clock, through the dew-soaked grass of the yard, came the Higgins boy. For the first time in his short life he had been awake all night and he moved slowly.

The housekeeper opened the door. Ike held up an envelope, clutched in a grimy hand.

"It's for you, Mrs. Keziah," he said. "Gracie she sent it. There ain't no answer."

Mrs. Coffin closed the door and tore open the envelope. Within was another addressed, in Grace's handwriting, to Mr. Ellery. The housekeeper entered the study, handed it to him and turned away.

"Dear John," wrote Grace. "I presume Aunt Keziah has told you of uncle's death and of my promise to Nat. It is true. I am going to marry him. I am sure this is right and for the best. Our friendship was a mistake and you must not see me again. Please don't try.

"GRACE VAN HORNE."

Beneath was another paragraph.

"Don't worry about me. I shall be happy, I am sure. And I shall hope that you may be. I shall pray for that."

The note fell to the floor with a

"John, What Are You Going to Do?"

rustle that sounded loud in the stillness. Then Keziah heard the minister's step. She turned. He was moving slowly across the room.

"John, what are you goin' to do?"

He shook his head. "I don't know," he said. "Go away somewhere, first of all, I guess. Go somewhere and—and try to live it down. I can't, of course, but I must try."

She put out her hand. "I know it'll be hard," she said, "stayin' here, I mean. But your duty to others—"

"Don't you think we've heard enough about duty to others? How about my duty to myself?"

"I guess that's the last thing we ought to think about in the world, if we do try to be fair and square. Your church thinks a heap of you, John. They build on you. You've done more in the little while you've been here than Mr. Langley did in his last fifteen years."

"You've never been asked to sit quietly by and see the one you love more than all the world marry some one else."

"How do you know I ain't? How do you know I ain't doin' just that now?"

"Mrs. Coffin!"

"John Ellery, you listen to me. You think I'm a homely old woman, probably, set in my ways as an eight-day clock. I guess I look like it and act like it. But I ain't so awful old—on the edge of forty, that's all. And when I was your age I wa'n't so awful homely, either. I had fellers aplenty hangin' round and I could have married any one of a dozen. This ain't boastin'; land knows I'm fur from that. I was brought up in this town and even when I was a girl at school there was only one boy I cared two straws about. He and I went to picnics together and to parties and everywhere. Folks used to laugh and say we was keepin' comp'ny, even then.

"Well, when I was eighteen, after father died, I went up to New Bedford to work in a store there. Wanted to earn my own way. And this young feller I'm tellin' you about went away to sea, but every time he come home from a voyage he come to see me and things went on that way till we was promised to each other. The engagement wa'n't announced, but 'twas so, just the same. We'd have been married in another year. And then we quarreled.

"'Twas a fool quarrel, same as that kind gen'rally are. As much my fault as his and as much his as mine, I cal'late. Anyhow, we was both proud, or thought we was, and neither would give in. And he says to me, 'You'll be sorry after I'm gone. You'll wish me back, then.' And says I, bein' a fool, 'I guess not. There's other fish in the sea.' He sailed and I did wish him back, but I wouldn't write fust and neither would he. And then come another man."

She paused, hesitated, and then continued.

JAPS PROTEST TO UNCLE SAM

They Object to Proposed Legislation in California.

DELICATE QUESTION RAISED.

Considers the Contemplated Law Prohibiting Alien Ownership Of Land As Being Aimed Against the Japanese.

Washington.—The Japanese government has lodged formal protest with the State Department against the proposed enactment by the State of California of what it considers anti-Japanese legislation, the measure prohibiting the alien ownership of land in California.

It was learned here that this protest was made nearly a fortnight ago. Secretary Bryan and Viscount Chinda, the Japanese ambassador, were closeted at the State Department in a private conference, the subject of which neither would discuss.

It is known that Secretary Bryan is giving close attention to this delicate subject, studying carefully the history of the negotiations that took place between Secretary Root and Baron Takahira in the Roosevelt administration, when a severe strain was placed upon the relations between America and Japan by the attempt of the California authorities to exclude Japanese children from the public schools.

The next step may be a communication from the Secretary of the State to the Governor of California calling his attention to the international questions involved in the proposed action of the legislature.

MISS ROOSEVELT A BRIDE.

Daughter Of Former President Will Spend Honeymoon In Europe.

Oyster Bay, N. Y.—Miss Ethel Roosevelt, daughter of Theodore Roosevelt, was married in Christ Episcopal Church here to Dr. Richard Derby, of New York. Two hundred close friends and relatives of the bride and bridegroom saw the ceremony.

Rev. Dr. George E. Talmadge, pastor of the local church, assisted by Rev. Dr. Cotton Smith, of Washington, and Rev. Dr. Endicott Peabody, of Groton, Mass., performed the ceremony.

The bride's attendants were the Misses Helen Coster, Josephine Osborn, Margaret Tucker, Mary Derby and Cornelia Langdon. The bridegroom's brother, Roger A. Dreby, was best man.

While Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt have declined to say anything about the presents received by Miss Roosevelt, it is known that she has received many beautiful and costly gifts from friends of the family and those who have been and are now prominent in the public life of the country.

WITH MILITARY HONORS.

Morgan's Body Transferred To Liner France At Havre.

Havre, France.—The body of the late J. Pierpont Morgan arrived here from Rome and was transferred to the liner France for transportation to New York. Military honors were accorded during the transfer of the body from the train to the steamer. A battalion of infantry formed an escort, headed by the regimental band, which played Chopin's Funeral March. The regimental flags draped with mourning emblems were carried behind the coffin. A mortuary chapel was arranged on board the France for the reception of the coffin. It was hung with black velvet fringed with gold.

C. F. WARWICK DIES.

Was Mayor Of Philadelphia From 1895 To 1899.

Philadelphia.—Charles F. Warwick, mayor of Philadelphia from 1895 to 1899, died at his home here after an illness of several years. He was four times elected city solicitor of Philadelphia and was a brilliant campaign orator, having accompanied James G. Blaine on some of his campaign tours. Mr. Warwick was 63 years old.

LOCALS

The best grade of seed oats and barley.—J. H. Weber, Centre Hall.

Joseph Fisher, of Sunbury, spent Thursday and Friday at the Fisher home at Boalsburg.

China Hall, Bellefonte, Pa., is the local sales room of the Basket Shops. Special sale now on. adv.

Several Bell telephone linemen, under the supervision of Benjamin Tate, did considerable work in and about Centre Hall.

Farmers are mighty busy these days, and their changing locations is much like horse swapping—each gets the best of the bargain.

The foundation for the annex to the Reporter building will be constructed with a view of accommodating the press and other machinery in this office.

The Harrisburg Patriot is giving its readers a first class newspaper. It is truly Democratic in principle, and hates the Democrat office holder who betrays his trust.

The Lutheran congregation in Bellefonte, which congregation comprises a charge, is contemplating the erection of a parsonage, which is to be built alongside the church.

The real estate of the late Christiana Miller, consisting of a house and lot, located on Main street, in Millheim, was sold to Adam Corman for $720 by the executor, D. L. Zerby. The home is now occupied by W. R. Wiser.

Guy W. Jacobs is in Athens, Georgia, superintending the installation of a large ice plant. He is employed by the York Manufacturing Co., with which concern he has been identified since his graduation from State in 1910.

John Smith, who for a number of years was a coal and grain dealer at Lamar, has moved to Harrisburg, where he purchased a property at No. 129 Sylvan Terrace, which point is quite near the Pennsy station. His married daughter also lives in tust city.

Hon. Howard Klepper, of Lock Haven, was in Centre Hall last week. He is Clinton county's representative in the lower house of the state legislature, and is battling for the interests of his constituents. He is a Democrat, of course, and won at the election after a heated contest. He and Centre's representative, Mr. Gramley, live in the same quarters at Harrisburg.

William G. Rossman, of near Centre Hall, was a caller on Tuesday, and informed the Reporter that he had been in Lock Haven on Saturday to consult Dr. Ball, and that it was his intention to return to the hospital in that city today (Thursday) and undergo an operation for gall stones. Mr. Rossman has not been in good health for some months, but he feels confident that after the operation he will again be able to resume work in the good old way.

A Philadelphia commission firm has a man in Penns Valley buying up hay, and a number of car loads have already been shipped from Centre Hall and Spring Mills. Timothy is preferred, but lower grades are also purchased. The price runs from $12 50 for the best timothy down to $9 00 for mixed lots. Very little hay from this section reaches the Philadelphia market, and it is only under extraordinary circumstances that hay is shipped there, and the conditions seem to be when the extreme in prices prevail. Thirty dollar hay was shipped there and now nine dollar hay is finding a market there.

LETTERS FROM SUBSCRIBERS.

Mrs. S. A. Krape Narrates Experience in Recent Ohio Flood.

Editor of the Reporter:

The Reporter has reached us regularly since we arrived here, and we appreciate the paper more than ever, and we want to convey to our friends the information that we are safe, although we had some experiences never before had The eastern dailies made little mention of conditions in Bellevue, but the city did not escape the ravishes of the flood. There were no lives lost or homes swept away, but one hundred houses were flooded and some of them to the second story. Our house was the last to flood on our street, and it stood in six feet of water, yet it was not high enough to reach the interior, and for this we are very thankful. We had made preparations for a higher water level, and had moved all the furniture to the second story It looked too dangerous to remain here surrounded by a great lake of water, so we went to the home of my cousin, H. E Royer, and remained there until the water receded. Many of the people stuck to the homes until it became necessary to remove them in boats. A peculiar condition is that there is no stream of water near here, the water that collected being surface water. The like had never before been witnessed by the earliest settlers. In the country surrounding Bellevue thousands of acres are also flooded, and many farmers were obliged to take their stock to the barn floor to save it from drowning.

Freemont, a city fourteen miles distant, is in bad condition. Many people lost all they had—houses, clothing and everything. The lives of some were also taken.

MRS. S. A. KRAPE.

Bellevue, Ohio, April 7, 1913.

The wedding ceremony witnesses will be confined to the immediate families of the young people who will surround the altar.

He will open a summer school at the same place on April 14th. This indicates that he has been meeting with success.

I. O. O. F. INSTALLS OFFICERS.

Dr. R. M. Krebs, D. P. Grand Master, the Installing Officer—Healthy Condition of Local Order.

At a special meeting of Centre Hall Lodge, No. 895, I. O. O. F., Tuesday evening, District Deputy Grand Master Dr. R. M. Krebs, of Pine Grove Mills, installed the following officers for the ensuing year:

Noble Grand, Victor Auman.
Vice Grand, J. Cloyd Brooks.
Chaplain, James S. Stahl.
Warden, William B. Fiedler.
Conductor, Milford Luse.
Inside Guardian, John F. Kreamer.
Outside Guardian, J. W. Whiteman.
R. S. N. G., E. W. Crawford.
L. S. N. G., G. H. Emerick.
R. S. V. G., I. B. Showers.
L. S. V. G., Bruce Arney.
R. S. S., M. L. Emerick.
L. S. S., Archey Moyer.

All dead since 1956

About fifty members of the local order were in attendance, besides visitors from lodges at Pine Grove Mills, Spring Mills, Freeburg, Boalsburg, Renovo and Karthaus.

The ceremonies attending the installation were impressive, and together with the work of conferring the first degree upon six new members, the meeting was one highly beneficial to all brothers of the order present.

Dr. R. M. Krebs, D. P. G. M., did his last work in the capacity of installing officer, and when called upon by the Noble Grand to address the lodge, spoke enthusiastically upon the project of building a hall on the site now occupied by Dauberman's meat market, which has been in possession of the Odd Fellows for a number of years. The growth of the lodge in the past year has been so marked as to necessitate enlarging its present quarters, or building a new hall. Sentiment is strong in favor of the latter plan, and it is possible that something tangible will be done in the near future.

A light lunch was served after the ceremonies, and a half hour enjoyed in social intercourse.

The local order now numbers a few above one hundred. Fifteen new members have been added since the first of the year, the majority of whom are young men. The order is in a flourishing condition in every respect.

The Third Degree.

The United Play company will present Charles Klein's play, "The Third Degree" at Garman's opera house on Monday evening, April 14th. Mr. Klein is the author of the well known play, "The Lion and the Mouse," which was also produced here by the United Play company. While "The Lion and the Mouse" dealt with characters high in politics and speculative commerce, in "The Third Degree" the story is laid in New York and deals with men and women in the smart set and the methods of the police in wringing confessions of guilt through the sweating process.

DEATHS

Henry W. McCraken, one of Ferguson township's most prominent citizens, died at his home at Rock Springs, on Sunday morning at two o'clock. Mr. McCraken had been in his usual health up to Saturday night, at which time he became ill, and continued to grow worse until death came.

Interment was made at Graysville on Wednesday morning, Rev. R. M. Campbell, pastor of the Presbyterian church, being the officiating minister.

Mr. McCraken was born in Ireland, but for many years lived at the place where he died. He owned several fine farms, and was himself a practical farmer. His wife, who survives him, was Miss Eliza Campbell, and these children also survive: Mrs. Anna Campbell, Ohio; Rev. John O., Johnstown; Clara, Mary, Lizzie, and Henry, at home.

The age of the deceased was eighty-four years.

David B Meyer, one of the oldest residents of Miles township, died on the Meyer homestead on Thursday evening of last week. Interment was made at Rebersburg on Monday, the services being conducted by Rev. Bingaman, pastor of the United Evangelical church.

The deceased belonged to one of the oldest families in Brush Valley, the elder Meyer having settled there early in the history of Pennsylvania. He was a farmer by occupation and was born September 15, 1827, making his age over eighty five years. His wife, who survives him, before marriage, was Miss Fietta Bierly. There also survives one son, Henry, who lives on the old homestead. Two brothers—Hon. Henry Meyer, of Rebersburg, and Daniel Meyer, of Dakota, Illinois; and a sister, Mrs. Judith Bierly, widow of Joseph Bierly, of Rebersburg, survive.

RETREAT WINS FOR SUFFRAGE

With Lieutenant Governor's Aid Women Avoid Defeat of Rights

CHANGE OF VOTE DENIED

Beidleman Angrily Objects When Huffman Tries to Aid the Fair Sex—First Time in Thirteen Years Tie Vote Is Broken.

(Special Harrisburg Correspondence.)

Harrisburg.—For the first time in 13 years the Lieutenant-Governor, as president of the Senate, was called upon to exercise his constitutional privilege of voting in case of a tie vote in that body, and in doing so Lieutenant-Governor Reynolds not only saved the Woman Suffrage measure from defeat, but practically gave the advocates of that measure a temporary victory that may yet bear the fruit in a permanent triumph. The question was on postponement of the measure for the present, an action advocated by friends of the measure when they counted up their friends in the Senate and found that four who would vote for the bill were absent. The bill was on final passage, a very critical period. Its friends knew that in the absence of the four friends, two of whom may not return this session, it was doomed to defeat, and to avert a catastrophe they decided to fight to have it postponed for the present, hoping that they might gain votes for a motion of that character from those who might not vote for the amendment itself. Once they effected a postponement they would be in a position to continue the fight and endeavor to secure votes from those who are not fully committed on the measure.

Powell Asks Postponement.

To this end Senator Powell, sponsor for the Rockwell measure, having introduced a similar one in the Senate, moved to postpone for the present. The carrying of this motion would leave the bill in position to be taken up at any time, or when Senators Sproul, Snyder, Stineman and Daix, all absent by reason of sickness, could be here to vote for it, when it might have a fair chance of passage. Powell explained that he stood sponsor for the bill because he had introduced a similar bill, which had given way to this one, and said he was asking this postponement out of courtesy to the absent Senators.

Herbst Eager for Action.

Senator Herbst, Berks, impatiently demanded a vote on the bill now. What was the use of postponing the inevitable? asked Herbst, meaning the bill's defeat. The Senate was as full now as it will be at any time hereafter, and action on the bill should no longer be delayed. Herbst was eager for blood. Beidleman broke in here with a sneer at Powell as being inconsistent in pleading for Senatorial courtesy now, when he opposed it on the Snyder Attorney bill. He should be consistent, remarked the Dauphin Senator in a voice that rattled the windows, and not ask for a postponement. Powell said his action in withdrawing opposition to postponement was born of Senatorial courtesy. On the present measure he disavowed his purpose to prevent action; he merely desired to postpone until there was a full Senate present.

Previous Agreement Cited.

"There was an understanding," said Powell, "when this bill was reported out that unless all Senators were present the bill should be postponed," and he wanted that agreement carried out. Then he served warning that if Senatorial courtesy were disregarded in this matter there would be something doing in the future that might not be so pleasant. Beidleman returned with the assertion that Powell's action was not based on Senatorial courtesy, and as this is not a Senate bill, but from the House, Powell had no right in good faith to ask a postponement. Senator Nulty favored postponement, because, as he made plain, it was a courtesy due to absent members who favored the bill.

Eagerly Keeping Tally.

Lieutenant-Governor Reynolds was about to order a call of the roll on Powell's motion to postpone, when Senator McIlhenny, of Philadelphia, arose to remark that whatever vote he cast on Powell's motion was not to be construed on the merits of the resolution. Then the vote was ordered, and the 100 or more women in the hall, suffragettes and antis, kept tally as the Senators answered to their names. It was life or death to the suffragettes. The antis were for death, and thirsted for gore. The roll call developed a tie vote—21 in favor of the motion and 21 against. The following was the vote in full:

Ayes—Alexander, Dewitt, Endsley, Gyger, Heacock, Hilton, Hoke, Jarrett, Judson, Knapp, Martin, McIlhenny, McNichols, Mills, Moore, Morgan, Nulty, Powell, Sensenich, Sheatz, Vare—21.

Nays—Beidleman, Buckman, Catlin, Clark, Cooper, Crow, Fisher, Hall, Herbst, Huffman, Hunter, Jones, Kline, Kurtz, McNichol, Miller, Salus, Sones, Thompson, Wasbers, Gerberich—21.

In voting, Mr. Vare, who was preoccupied, voted no, but quickly changed to aye. The fact that it was a tie vote was quickly known, and interest was centred in what would be the next move. There was an intimation that in case of a tie the opponents would claim that the Powell motion was dead, not getting a majority vote; but they were not familiar with the Constitution, and Secretary Baker was. He produced a copy of the fundamental document, and there read that the Lieutenant Governor only has a vote in the Senate in case it is equally divided on a question. That seemed to settle the matter. The Lieutenant Governor had a vote, and his nervousness betrayed that he was about to exercise his right.

Beidleman Angrily Objects.

Before he could announce his vote, however, Huffman, who had voted "no," asked to be permitted to change his vote to "aye." Instantly Beidleman jumped to his feet and objected. One objection to the change of a vote is sufficient, and Beidleman had violated all tradition in objecting; but he was livid with anger over what was not a victory for him, and he went the limit. Presently Lieutenant Governor Reynolds, in a silence that was absolutely painful, announced that under the Constitution it was his duty to vote to break the tie vote of 21 to 21, and he voted "aye." Following the announcement, and realizing that they had, by retreat, won a tactical victory, with at least four of their friends absent, the suffragists loudly applauded, while the antis on the opposite side of the big green and gold chamber scowled and looked very uncomfortable.

Battle Was Over.

That was all there was to it, and the Senate resumed its routine work, while the women filed out from opposite doors, and the battle was over. Of those not voting on the Powell motion, Farley and Magee were present. Daix, Graff and Homsher were not here, and Snyder, Sproul and Stineman are ill at their homes, and the latter, it is believed, is dying.

The Democrats who disregarded the platform mandate of the last State convention to further the submission of the woman suffrage amendment to a vote of the people were:—Fisher, Hall, Herbst, Huffman, Miller, Sones and Washers; while those who voted in favor were:—Dewitt, Gyger, Heacock, Hilton, Judson, Morgan and Nulty. The suffragists' tactical triumph has served to make the advocates of equal suffrage more determined than ever in their fight. They argue that with the twenty-one who voted for them the four absentees who favor them, and Mr. Huffman, who at the last moment tried to change his vote in their favor, they would have the twenty-six votes requisite to pass their resolution; but probably neither Senator Stineman nor Senator Sproul can be present again this season.

House Doubles Salaries.

With eyes wide open and with deliberate forethought, the House of Representatives stood by its hasty action in voting into the hands of the State Live Stock Sanitary Board the power to increase its payroll ad libitum, without consent of anybody, and to scatter through the State paid agents, to be used for any purpose which suits the Board. By the same act it increased the salary of the Secretary of the Board by 100 per cent. and the salary of the assistant secretary to the same tune. The bill was slipped through without comment when members were voting perfunctorily as the bills came up in their order. An effort to reconsider the vote was halted by a motion to adjourn, which barely carried. The motion was renewed by its author, Bergey, Democrat, of Montgomery county, and the matter was debated at length. It was pointed out that in addition to increasing the salary of the secretary from $2,500 to $5,000 and the assistant secretary from $1,000 to $2,000, the measure took all restrictions off the employment of agents, permitting the board to employ "such agents as may be necessary," and to fix their salaries. Under the present law, the board can employ not more than ten agents, at $1,800 a year each.

Favor for Garbage Contract.

The administration bill, introduced by Representative J. R. K. Scott, extending the period of street lighting, garbage and street cleaning contracts in Philadelphia to five years, was amended in the Judiciary Special Committee so as to apply only to garbage. This bill was prepared by Director Cooke, and its purpose was to permit the city to get better terms if the contracts were made for a longer period than one year.

State Funds Received.

Receipts at the State Treasury were $2,441,035.66 during the month of March, and the disbursements $2,574,373.13, the excess of disbursements over receipts being $133,337.57. The balance in the treasury at the end of March was $8,050,819.80, against $8,184,187.37 at the end of February. The receipts from December 1 to March 31 amounted to $6,994,043.34, and disbursements in the same period $8,725,074.24, an excess of disbursements of $1,731,030.90. The balance shows a decrease of $1,731,030.90.

Favor Envelope System.

The Senate Elections Committee decided to report the envelope system of voting, and also decided upon party enrollment and important amendments to the uniform primary law. Under the envelope system of voting electors may enter a polling place and ask for an official ballot, and either take it home to mark it, or may immediately enter a booth and place his marks upon it. When the voter returns to the polling place from his home or leaves the booth he will receive an official envelope. In this he puts his ballot.

OLLIE ON THE FARM

Good Dog Is as Essential as Other Live Stock.

Rough-Coated Scotch Variety Is Not Only Useful—Around Sheep, but Can Be Taught to Drive Cattle and Keep Watch.

There is nothing more companionable when rambling through the woods or walking in the country than a fine dog. On the farm a dog—a good one—is as essential as other live stock.

There is no animal more intelligent or sagacious than a collie, and no dog is more suitable for the farmer. Collies are very beautiful, graceful in every movement and are active all the time. Their heavy coat adds to their beauty, and enables them to withstand all kinds of exposure. A collie is easily taught, and soon learns to do useful duties about the place without bidding. They think and act for themselves in an emergency, making most excellent watchdogs, and always show loyalty and love for their master.

If you have never taken a fancy to a dog just get a good intelligent collie and you will in a short time think nearly as much of him as any member of the family. They make fine companions for women and children. They are very affectionate and their affections are strong and lasting.

The rough-coated Scotch collie is one of the oldest breeds of dogs. Its history extends way back into ancient times when dogs of this breed were used by the shepherds to care for their flocks. It is today used for this same purpose not only in the west among the mountains and the plains, but in England and Scotland, as well as in every other country under the sun, where they have made themselves indispensable. They are not only very useful around sheep, but can easily be taught to drive cattle and to keep a general watch over them, as well as of hogs and of the poultry. Many a collie has learned to keep fowls out of the garden and away from the front of the house without ever doing any damage to them.

The price of collies, as with fowls, depends greatly upon the quality and what they are wanted for. Some of our highest show types of collies are the most intelligent and useful around the farm. Good puppies sell to the farmers at from $8.00 to $10.00 each. The fancier who desires to raise collie puppies pays from $10 to $150 for puppies not over two to four weeks old.

One collie was brought to this country from England several years ago for $5,000, and one came last year at the reported price of $6,500. Every year several change hands at $1,000 each, and many at $100 up.

Collies can be trained easily and quickly, to do many useful things, but there is one thing that should be borne in mind, and that is, the training should be done by only one person. Do not let every member of the family take a hand in the training or the result will be a spoiled dog. When well trained, no farmer will ever regret having spent a little time and money on a collie.

PROPER TRAINING OF COLTS

Two-Thirds of Horses Called Vicious Can Be Managed by Judicious Treatment—Many Spoiled.

Many valuable horses are spoiled by improper or harsh treatment in training. A man who is incapable of understanding the disposition of horses is certainly incapable of training them. Two-thirds of the horses that have been called vicious can be managed by proper treatment, says the Farm and Home.

It is bad policy to train a colt unless he is in the best of spirits. The brain will be more active, therefore the disposition easier to control. On the other hand, if you train a colt while he is thin in flesh, in poor spirits and on light food, as some men do, he will not take notice of objects, and when on good feed later he is not well trained. Have them in good spirits, give plenty of feed, and us less whip.

Fertilize Properly.

Farmers are paying out millions of dollars each year for fertilizers. Probably the greater part of this money is well spent, but it is possible that it might be better spent, by a more careful selection of the goods used, by adapting the fertilizer to the crops and soil and by buying on the basis of the plant food they contain rather than by seeking goods that sell at a low price.

Reclaiming Old Orchard.

Cutting out the dead wood and superfluous branches, cultivating and enriching the ground, spraying the trees at the proper season are the principal methods of rejuvenating an old orchard.

MAKING THE PLOWING EASIER

Hardest Work That the Farm Horses Are Called Upon to Perform—Keep Shares Sharpened.

Plowing is at best the hardest work our farm horses have to perform. Few plow teams are not doing 10 to 30 per cent. of unnecessary work. The writer has seen plows which he believed were pulling 50 per cent harder than they should, writes E. W. Hamilton in an exchange.

We are told that about 50 per cent. of the draft of a plow is due to the cutting of the furrow slice. The condition of the cutting edge must then be of first importance. Expert plowmen recognize this and in competitions file their shares to knife edges. One authority claims that an old share resharpened has shown 36 per cent. heavier draft than a new share. Again, engine plows of the same make and size have under the same conditions shown 45 per cent. difference in draft in favor of the new freshly filed shares over resharpened shares in ordinary condition. It will certainly pay to keep the plowshares sharp and in proper form.

The set and adjustment of a plow has almost as much to do with the draft as condition of the share. A riding plow with rear furrow wheel should pull little or no harder than a walking plow or plows of the same widths. Yet how many do it? About 30 per cent. of the draft of a walking plow is due to the friction of the plow on the bottom and side of the furrow. In the riding plow this friction is eliminated by carrying the weight and down and side pressure of plow bottom on wheels.

To accomplish this the rear furrow wheel is set out about an inch and a quarter so that landside cannot touch the side furrow. The wheel is also set down so the heel of landside is raised off the bottom of furrow. When so set the plow bottom will sink into the ground and hang there. When plow bottoms "float" in the frame none of the bottom and side pressure is removed and the draft of the bottoms is the same as that of the walking plows to which must be added that due to weight of plow frame and driver.

LARGE SLIDING BARN DOORS

Recoil Spring Buffer Prevents Them From Jumping Track When They Are Thrown Open Quickly.

Large sliding barn doors have a tendency to jump the track when they are thrown open quickly. This may be prevented by using a recoil spring to stop the door at the place where it is entirely open, writes J. Harry Priestly of Lawrence, Mass., in the Popular Mechanics. A buffer or recoil spring can be easily attached to the outside of the building wall as shown in the sketch. The Buffer A is fastened on the ends of two sliding pins, B and C, each one inch in diameter and 18 inches long. The pins slide loosely through holes bored in the pieces D and E, which are two inches square and 14 inches long, and fastened permanently in the right location. Two strong spiral springs are placed on the pins between the buffer head and the piece D.

SELECTION OF FEEDER STEER

Width and Straightness of Back, With Accompanying Well-Sprung Rib, Most Desired.

While the butcher desires fineness of bone and high quality in all parts so that there shall be little waste on the block, it is not desirable to have this go to extremes. A steer with too much refinement, as indicated by a light bone and frail head, and a small paunch, will not be able to stand the strain of heavy feeding, and then finish out with the great weight that is desired.

No one point is considered more important in selecting feeder steers than the width and straightness of the back, with the accompanying well-sprung rib. It is an index to the feeding quality and points to the ability to put on meat in the expensive cuts.

Getting Seed Grain Early.

Do not wait until spring to clean and grade your seed grain. Do it while you have plenty of grain at hand from which to select. The best twenty-five bushels of grain out of a hundred bushels are worth much more for seed than is the grain that can be cleaned from a much smaller amount in the spring.

The cost of thus cleaning and grading the grain is very slight, and it enables one to have heavy, plump seed grain at very little outlay.

Diseased Trees.

It is well to remember that the old and diseased trees not only take up valuable space in the orchard, but they are liable to spread disease among the healthy trees, and they always harbor pests that are injurious to the entire orchard.

Costly City Improvements.

If all the buildings torn down annually in the borough of Manhattan, in New York City could be assembled they would make a good-sized town. Last year the number of buildings demolished was 819, and a gas tank brought the total demolitions to 820. The front feet measurement of the houses pulled down was 24,875, or approximately four and three-quarter miles. Nine houses out of ten destroyed were four stories high.

RESINOL RELIEVED ITCHING INSTANTLY

And Completely Cured Skin Humor.

If you have eczema or any other itching, burning skin trouble, the best evidence of what Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment can do for you is the word of one who was cured by them after weeks of suffering. Adolph Schoen, 742 Shepherd Ave., Brooklyn, writes:

Nov. 1, 1912.—"At first little red spots were seen on my arms and body, which I noticed were getting larger every day. They itched me so much that I scratched myself until I bled. There were times when I stood up all night and scratched. I was troubled about three weeks, during which time I used ——, which seemed to do me no good whatever. Then, finally, I thought of trying Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. As soon as I applied Resinol Ointment I felt much relief. After using it a few times, I noticed the sore spots slowly fading away, and in about a month I was cured completely."

The soothing, healing balsams in Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, penetrate every tiny pore of the skin, clearing it of all impurities, driving away eczema, rashes, ringworm, psoriasis, and other eruptions, and making pimples and blackheads impossible. Prescribed by physicians for eighteen years. For free samples write to Dept. 8-K, Resinol, Baltimore, Md. Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment (50c) and Resinol Soap (25c), or sent by parcel post on receipt of price.

WILSON SUBMITS FIRST MESSAGE

Congress in Extra Session Is Told What President Expects Done

DOCUMENT UNUSUALLY BRIEF

Tariff Schedules, Says Chief Executive, Must Be Altered to Conform With Modern Conditions According to Party's Pledge.

Washington, April 8.—In his first message to congress, a document of unusual brevity, President Wilson today told the senate and house what he and the country expect in the way of revision of the tariff, the task for which mainly the extraordinary session was called. Following is the text of the message:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I have called the congress together in extraordinary session because a duty was laid upon the party now in power at the recent elections which it ought to perform promptly, in order that the burden carried by the people under existing law may be lightened as soon as possible and in order, also, that the business interests of the country may not be kept too long in suspense as to what the fiscal changes are to be to which they will be required to adjust themselves. It is clear to the whole country that the tariff duties must be altered. They must be changed to meet the radical alteration in the conditions of our economic life which the country has witnessed within the last generation.

While the whole face and method of our industrial and commercial life were being changed beyond recognition the tariff schedules have remained what they were before the change began, or have moved in the direction they were given when no large circumstance of our industrial development was what it is today. Our task is to square them with the actual facts. The sooner that is done the sooner we shall escape from suffering from the facts and the sooner our men of business will be free to thrive by the law of nature (the nature of free business) instead of by the law of legislation and artificial arrangement.

Business Not Normal.

We have seen tariff legislation wander very far afield in our day—very far indeed from the field in which our prosperity might have had a normal growth and stimulation. No one who looks the facts squarely in the face or knows anything that lies beneath the surface of action can fail to perceive the principles upon which recent tariff legislation has been based. We long ago passed beyond the modest notion of "protecting" the industries of the country and moved boldly forward to the idea that they were entitled to the direct patronage of the government. For a long time—a time so long that the men now active in public policy hardly remember the conditions that preceded it—we have sought in our tariff schedules to give each group of manufacturers or producers what they themselves thought that they needed in order to maintain a practically exclusive market as against the rest of the world. Consciously or unconsciously, we have built up a set of privileges and exemptions from competition behind which it was easy by any, even the crudest, forms of combination to organize monopoly; until at last nothing is normal, nothing is obliged to stand the tests of efficiency and economy, in our world of big business, but everything thrives by concerted arrangement. Only new principles of action will save us from a final hard crystallization of monopoly and a complete loss of the influences that quicken enterprise and keep independent energy alive.

It is plain what those principles must be. We must abolish everything that bears even the semblance of privilege or of any kind of artificial advantage, and put our business men and producers under the stimulation of a constant necessity to be efficient, economical, and enterprising, masters of competitive supremacy, better workers and merchants than any in the world. Aside from the duties laid upon articles which we do not, and probably cannot, produce, therefore, and the duties laid upon luxuries and merely for the sake of the revenues they yield, the object of the tariff duties henceforth laid must be effective competition, the whetting of American wits by contest with the wits of the rest of the world.

Development, Not Revolution.

It would be unwise to move toward this end headlong, with reckless haste, or with strokes that cut at the very roots of what has grown up amongst us by long process and at our own invitation. It does not alter a thing to upset it and break it and deprive it of a chance to change. It destroys it. We must make changes in our fiscal laws, in our fiscal system, whose object is development, a more free and wholesome development, not revolution or upset or confusion. We must build up trade, especially foreign trade. We need the outlet and the enlarged field of energy more than we ever did before. We must build up industry as well and must adopt freedom in the place of artificial stimulation only so far as it will build, not pull down. In dealing with the tariff the method by which this may be done will be a matter of judgment, exercised item by item.

To some not accustomed to the excitements and responsibilities of greater freedom our methods may in some respects and at some points seem heroic, but remedies may be heroic and yet be remedies. It is our business to make sure that they are genuine remedies. Our object is clear. If our motive is above just challenge and only an occasional error of judgment is chargeable against us, we shall be fortunate.

We are called upon to render the country a great service in more matters than one. Our responsibility should be met and our methods should be thorough, as thorough as moderate and well considered, based upon the facts as they are, and not worked out as if we were beginners. We are to deal with the facts of our own day, with the facts of no other, and to make laws which square with those facts. It is best, indeed it is necessary, to begin with the tariff. I will urge nothing upon you now at the opening of your session which can obscure that first object or divert our energies from that clearly defined duty. At a later time I may take the liberty of calling your attention to reforms which should press close upon the heels of the tariff changes, if not accompany them, of which the chief is the reform of our banking and currency laws; but just now I refrain. For the present, I put these matters on one side and think only of this one thing—of the changes in our fiscal system which may best serve to open once more the free channels of prosperity to a great people whom we would serve to the utmost and throughout both rank and file.

WOODROW WILSON.

The White House, April 8, 1913.

PULLED THE POETRY STUFF

Actor Doing a Double in an Emergency Follows Instructions of Stage Manager.

William Gillette, in the course of an address made to the graduates of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts at the Empire theater, told a story.

"When I was in Booth's company years ago," the actor said, "we had to be up in many parts. Frequently the actors would have to double in a performance when the roles outnumbered the people. I remember one time we were playing 'Hamlet.' When the time came, in the players' scene, for the man to poison the king, it was found that the particular actor selected for the part was on the stage in another role.

"Immediately the stage manager grabbed an actor who was getting ready to continue in another role. The actor was wrapped in a big mantle, handed a bottle and told to hurry on the stage and do the poisoning. Nobody would recognize him, said the stage manager.

"'But,' protested the actor, 'what are my lines?'

"'Oh, you know,' replied the stage manager.

"'That poetry stuff?'

"'Sure!'

"'All right,' said the actor. Then he strode on the stage with his bottle, and, bending over the king, said:

"'Nobody here, nobody near!

"'I'll pour the poison in his ear!'"

Frowned on Innovation.

Montrose, Scotland, is to be an aviation station, and the appearance of flying machines there is enough, according to the London Chronicle, to bring some of the good old ladies of that town out of their graves. It was one of them, as Dean Ramsay records, who protested against steam vessels, as counteracting the decrees of providence in going against wind and tide. "I would hae naething to say ta thae impious vessels," she insisted. Another was equally shocked by the introduction of gas in place of oil, demanding: "What's to become o' the puir whales?"

Much for His Money.

At the suffrage portrait show at the Glaenzer galleries in New York, John Sloan told a story about the nude in art.

"An old farmer and his wife," said Mr. Sloan, "once visited an exhibition where the nude predominated. They seemed a good deal impressed, they seemed almost stupefied, by all the white and gleaming pictures. As they left, I heard the old man say with a sigh:

"'Well, Hannah, I never expected to see as much as this for a quarter!'"

Roses From Italy.

The rose, so long considered the floral emblem of England, was not known in that country until the early part of the fifteenth century. Rose trees were then brought from Italy and planted in the royal gardens. They were sent as presents from the holy father and highly esteemed by royalty. It became the custom to carve them over the doors of the confessional as holy flowers, hence the term sub rosa (under the rose) used to mean "with secrecy."—Ave Maria.

Guy de Maupassant as a Clerk.

Guy de Maupassant's manner of life as a junior clerk in the French education office is the subject of an interesting article by one of his old colleagues. We gather that he absented himself from his duties on the ground of illness on an average about three days a week, and that was how he obtained leisure for literary composition. None the less he was very anxious to retain his clerkship until his literary prospects were secure.—Westminster Gazette.

COMMERCIAL

Weekly Review of Trade and Market Reports.

Bradstreet's says: "The week's trade reports are characterized by the vagaries of nature's elements, but later received reports would seem to indicate that with the return of good weather in the afflicted areas there is a disposition toward taking a more optimistic view of the results of the storms. Nowithstanding the untoward developments, superinduced by stormy weather, torrential rains and disastrous floods, however, returns are not worse than irregular.

"The markets for speculative commodities were rather dull, the prostration of telegraph lines being an important influence in restricting trading in the grain markets to very small proportions. Price changes were unimportant.

"Incomplete reports on business failures show a total of 205 for the week."

Thirteen Not Unlucky for Him.

Dr. Nansen has good reason to regard thirteen as a lucky number. The crew of the Fram, in which he made the most successful of his expeditions, consisted of thirteen men, who all, after an absence of three years, returned to their homes in perfect safety. Dr. Nansen arrived back in Norway on Aug. 13, 1896, and on the same day the Fram emerged from her long drift on the ice into the open sea. Moreover, during the voyage, as the doctor records, "Kirk presented us with thirteen pups, a curious coincidence—thirteen pups born on Dec 13, 1893, for thirteen men."

GIRL SUFFERED TERRIBLY

At Regular Intervals—Says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured her.

Adrian, Texas.—"I take pleasure in adding my testimonial to the great list and hope that it will be of interest to suffering women. For four years I suffered untold agonies at regular intervals. Such pains and cramps, severe chills and sickness at stomach, then finally hemorrhages until I would be nearly blind. I had five doctors and none of them could do more than relieve me for a time.

"I saw your advertisement in a paper and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took seven boxes of it and used two bottles of the Sanative Wash, and I am completely cured of my trouble. When I began taking the Compound I only weighed ninety-six pounds and now I weigh one hundred and twenty-six pounds. If anyone wishes to address me in person I will cheerfully answer all letters, as I cannot speak too highly of the Pinkham remedies."—Miss JESSIE MARSH, Adrian, Texas.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

THE CENTRE REPORTER

THURSDAY, APRIL 10, 1913

G. A. R. GETTYSBURG REUNION.

Arrangements Being Made to Accommodate 48,000 Civil War Veterans.

The great tent town which will spring up on the battlefield of Gettysburg for the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg, July 1, 2, 3 and 4, has progressed beyond the blue-print stage. Secretary Lewis E. Beitler of the Anniversary Commission, by working day and many nights has already got a force of men on the field staking out the streets, laying water mains, drilling wells and providing for the sanitary conditions of the camp which for less than a week will contain 48,000 veterans of the Civil War.

In the centre of the tented city will be a great square about which will be stationed the Federal troops detailed to the encampment. Each street will have its kitchen and three times as much hospital space will be provided for the veterans as the National Guard provides during any of its encampments.

The veterans' mushroom city will also be provided with a great auditorium for the purpose of holding reunions and meetings. This will be constructed inside the largest tent in America. This tent, if filled with circus seats would hold over 20,000 persons, but the commission has decided to provide plenty of room for the veterans and to give each a chair, so that the seating capacity of the tent will be limited to 12,500.

The State will provide all entertainment during the four days' for "honorably discharged veterans of the Civil War" and the State with the Federal Government, each of which will contribute $150,000 will maintain the camp, complete in all its provisions of camp and garrison equipment, with all quartermaster, commissary, hospital and other necessary supplies. There will be 280 acres devoted to the camp which will be located 200 yards from the High Water Mark Monument and partly upon the spot where the first day's battle occurred.

Five thousand tents, each with a capacity of 12 men, but which will not be permitted to house more than eight, will be raised, and the meals will be served at tables adjoining the kitchen at the end of each street. The camp will be opened in complete readiness on June 29 and will close July 6.

The program for the four days' exercises and entertainment is not yet perfected in detail, but the tentative suggestions are :

July 1st—Veterans' Day: Exercises under the joint direction of the Pennsylvania Commission, and the Commanders-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic and the United Confederate Veterans.

July 2nd—Military Day: Under the direction of the Chief of Staff of the United States Army. Special detachments of each arm of the Regular Service to participate as directed.

July 3rd—Civic Day: Under the direction of the Governor of Pennsylvania, presiding, and participated in by the Governors of the several States. Orations, sermon and music.

July 4th—National Day: The Chief Justice of the United States presiding. Forenoon, Oration by the President of the United States. High noon, he to lay the cornerstone of the great Peace Memorial. Evening fireworks.

Building Boom.

Although the number of college buildings to be erected this year at State College is as yet unknown, a building boom is on in the borough. Among the structures will be a post-office building to cost at least $50,000 after the site is paid for; a faculty club house to cost $30,000; an addition to the Nittany Inn which will cost $25,000; a business block including a moving picture show costing $26,000; another for a department store and flats at a cost of $28 000; and at least 50 private dwellings, most of them for dormitory or boarding house purposes.

Surprise Party.

On attaining his twenty-fourth birthday a surprise party was given in honor of John Bitner at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Bitner, of near Potters Mills. Refreshments fit for gods were served, and those were the guests present:

Mrs. Emma Fahringer, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Neff, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Weaver, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Confer, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Slutterbeck, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bower, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Glasgow, Mr. and Mrs. John Fahringer, Fred Klinefelter, John Neff, Charles Slutterbeck, Ada Meese, Grace Neff, Ruth and Mary Slutterbeck, Mary Neff, Dora Klinefelter, Roy Mantz, Homer Neff, William Confer, Fred Glasgow, Ruth Bower, Jacob Bitner, Grace Wolfe, Jacob Nevel, Ethel Bitner and Dorothy Glasgow.

The Grand View Poultry Farm and the Centre Hall Poultry Yards under the management of A. E Kerlin and Son, and Charles D. Bartholomew, respectively, are having their busy season just now. Eggs at their plants are being gathered daily by the thousands, and chicks are being hatched on the same grand scale.

WHEN A MAN'S SICK.

That's the Time a Woman Does the Boss Act to Perfection.

When a woman has charge of a sick man she feels as important as the marshal of the day at a country Fourth of July celebration, and however amiable she may be at other times she is very "bossy" when she has medicine to give a man or lotions to put on him. If he wants a drink of water she expresses the opinion that he is drinking too much and remembers that her Aunt Harriet's husband once drank a great deal when he was sick and had convulsions.

If the sick man becomes impatient and says the medicine is doing no good she reminds him curtly that "time" is necessary. She has even been known to dip into the classics and say that Rome was not built in a day. The air of wisdom with which she examines the doctor books convinces the sick man that, however intelligent his medical adviser may have been, after his recovery he will be informed that he would have been sick much longer had she not used her homemade lotions. Whatever she does at night the doctor will agree in the morning that it was very good.

The sleepiest woman in the world will stay up all night cheerfully if she can get a chance to doctor somebody, and if a man has medicine to take at an unusual hour he will get it if there is a woman around.—Ed Howe in American Magazine.

USE OF "TURKISH" WORDS.

Ottomans Themselves Don't Know the Meaning of Them.

"Sublime porte" is one of those European expressions for Turkish institutions which are never used by the Turks themselves. The Ottoman government's official title for itself is Hukyumet-i-seniye, the glorious government.

Turks do not speak of "the sultan," but of the "padishah," a Persian term meaning the father of monarchs.

Turkey is a geographical expression used outside the land it denotes, but unknown to those who dwell in it. The Turks talk of Roumelia Anadol. The foreign residents may speak of Anatolia, Albania or the Lebanon. They will tell you they live at Smyrna, Saloniki or Beirut or elsewhere but the word Turkey never crosses their lips. In the realm itself there is no collective name for the territory of the sultan.

Albania, Bulgaria and Roumania, although contiguous to one another, speak three totally different languages. The Bulgarian tongue is that of ancient Russia, and Roumanian resembles that of ancient Rome more closely than modern Italian does. Albanian has no marked affinity with any other language, though philologists have discovered in it some slight traces of Basque and Hungarian influence.—New York Sun.

A "Touching" Story.

The young lady who had sat for a crayon portrait was not altogether pleased with the result. "It looks like me, of course," she said, inspecting it doubtfully, "and yet I think there are some things about it that ought to be changed."

She suggested that the eyes should have rather more of an upward look, that the right hand should be a little less prominent, that the hair should be made more wavy and that certain changes ought to be made in the drapery.

"That would require a great deal of retouching," said the artist, "and I should have to charge you about $10 additional."

"Oh, dear!" she exclaimed, with a pout. "I shall have to give it up. Papa won't stand my 'retouching' him to that extent."

The Eagle.

According to Washington Irving, the Delaware Indian had a superstitious reverence for the eagle, believing that a guardian spirit in the form of this bird watched over them, hovering in the sky far out of sight. When pleased with their actions, he sent abundant crops and made them have great success in hunting, but when dipleased he would vent his rage in the thunder, which was his voice, and the lightning, which was the flashing of his eye, and strike dead the object of his displeasure. They also believed that the feathers of this bird would render the wearer invisible and invulnerable.

One Way of Putting It.

"My dear boy," said Enpeck, who happened to be in a confidential mood, "you will never know what real happiness is until you get married."

"You don't mean it!" exclaimed Singleton, astonished at such a remark from such an unexpected source.

"It's a fact," rejoined Enpeck; "but then it will be too late for you to appreciate it."—London Answers.

Rapidly Aged.

Client (to matrimonial agent)—You showed me this lady's photo last year and told me she was twenty-five, but after making inquiries I find she is over thirty. Matrimonial Agent—Well, you see, her father died lately and that aged her very much.

Great Provocation.

"You say, madam, that you were under great excitement when you struck this woman."

"Yes. She had just found the family Bible with my age in it."

The Easiest Task.

Probably the easiest task is for a poor man to tell what a rich man should do with his money.—Atchison Globe.

Laundry will go out from this office next Wednesday.
